The Problem

The leadership gap is not coming. It is already here.

70%

of the variance in a team's engagement is determined by the manager. When 60% of those managers were never trained, the cost is not theoretical.

Gallup, State of the Global Workplace, 2026.
Global disengagement cost: $10 trillion annually.

THE CAUSE

60%

of new managers report they never received any training when they transitioned into their first leadership role.

Gentry, Logan & Tonidandel, Center for Creative Leadership, 2014

THE CONSEQUENCE

60%

of new managers report they never received any training when they transitioned into their first leadership role.

Gartner HR Research

What this sounds like inside your company

These are not hypothetical. These are conversations happening in Indian companies every week.

The New Manager

"I know my work inside out. But now I am supposed to give feedback, run appraisals, and present to the leadership team. Nobody taught me any of this."

Outcome: Avoids hard conversations. Team underperforms.

The Skip-Level Leader

"We promoted her because she was our best engineer. Six months later, she is overwhelmed and her team has two resignations."

Outcome: Lost talent. Lost time. Promotion becomes a liability.

The Peer

"He got the role I wanted. But honestly, I would not know how to do it either. We are all just figuring it out."

Outcome: No pipeline of ready managers. The gap widens.

The Team Member

"My manager is technically brilliant, but I have no idea what he expects from me. There is no structure, no clarity, no direction."

Outcome: Disengagement. Quiet quitting. Attrition.

This Is For You

Three Careers. One Crossroads. One Programme.

You could be two years into your career or seven. An engineer, an analyst, or a founder. The gap is the same: you are expected to manage, but nobody built the foundation.

01

The analyst becoming a manager

1-3 years · IT / ITES / BFSI / Consulting

You have mastered the spreadsheet and the dashboard. Your manager keeps saying "you should lead this project." But nobody taught you how to run a team meeting, give difficult feedback, or present a business case to leadership.

The Gap: You have the technical skill but not the management vocabulary.

02

The specialist hitting the ceiling

1-5 years · Engineering / Sales / Finance / Operations / Marketing

You are deep in one function and respected for it. But you cannot read a P&L, negotiate across departments, or design an org structure. Every cross-functional conversation reminds you that depth without breadth has a shelf life.

The Gap: You know your domain but not the language of general management.

03

The founder without the framework

1-5 years · Family business / Early-stage venture

You are stepping into a family business or building something of your own. The responsibility arrived before the textbook. You need finance, operations, marketing, strategy, and people management in one structured programme, not five separate courses.

The Gap: You have the ownership but not the operating system.

Where you are today

- "I rely on what I already know."
- "I cannot read a financial statement without help."
- "I struggle to be heard outside my own function."
- "I do not have the vocabulary for the conversations that matter."

After 11 months

- "I think across 10 management functions with confidence."
- "I analyse financials, design operations, and lead teams."
- "I am heard in every room I walk into."
- "I hold an IIM Bangalore credential and affiliate alumni status."

Who can apply

Graduates in any discipline with 1-5 years of professional experience.

Learners with 6-7 years of professional experience will be considered on a case to case basis by IIMBx
